The Honorable Michael J. Rubio
California Senate
Sacramento, California  95814

Dear Mr. Rubio:

Thank you for your letter of December 19, 2011, expressing your support for the Bay Delta Conservation Plan (BDCP). The Department of the Interior and the California Natural Resources Agency are committed to developing a plan that will help advance the dual goals of restoring and enhancing the Bay Delta ecosystem while providing a reliable water supply for California. We appreciate your support for the BDCP.

Governor Edmund Brown, Jr. and Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar recently reaffirmed their strong, mutual resolve to move forward with the BDCP and reinforced their joint commitment to effective actions to achieve both a healthy San Francisco Bay Delta ecosystem and a reliable water supply. Our Agencies are taking actions to ensure a fair, open and transparent process, and the opportunity for input by all interested parties in the development of this plan to address the future of California’s Bay Delta and water supply.

We look forward to continuing to develop the BDCP in partnership with you and the other State legislators. California’s complex water problems require thoughtful, science-based solutions developed with the support of Federal and State governments and key stakeholder groups. Your support for the BDCP process is critical to its success.

Sincerely,

David J. Hayes
Deputy Secretary

The Department of the Interior and the California Natural Resources Agency are committed to developing a plan that will help advance the dual goals of restoring and enhancing the Bay Delta ecosystem while providing a reliable water supply for California. We appreciate your support for the BDCP.

Governor Edmund Brown, Jr. and Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar recently reaffirmed their strong, mutual resolve to move forward with the BDCP and reinforced their joint commitment to effective actions to achieve both a healthy San Francisco Bay Delta ecosystem and a reliable water supply. Our Agencies are taking actions to ensure a fair, open and transparent process, and the opportunity for input by all interested parties in the development of this plan to address the future of California’s Bay Delta and water supply.

We look forward to continuing to develop the BDCP in partnership with you and the other State legislators. California’s complex water problems require thoughtful, science-based solutions developed with the support of Federal and State governments and key stakeholder groups. Your support for the BDCP process is critical to its success.

Dear Mr. Cedillo:

Thank you for your letter of December 19, 2011, expressing your support for the Bay Delta Conservation Plan (BDCP). The Department of the Interior and the California Natural Resources Agency are committed to developing a plan that will help advance the dual goals of restoring and enhancing the Bay Delta ecosystem while providing a reliable water supply for California. We appreciate your support for the BDCP.

Governor Edmund Brown, Jr. and Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar recently reaffirmed their strong, mutual resolve to move forward with the BDCP and reinforced their joint commitment to effective actions to achieve both a healthy San Francisco Bay Delta ecosystem and a reliable water supply. Our Agencies are taking actions to ensure a fair, open and transparent process, and the opportunity for input by all interested parties in the development of this plan to address the future of California’s Bay Delta and water supply.

We look forward to continuing to develop the BDCP in partnership with you and the other State legislators. California’s complex water problems require thoughtful, science-based solutions developed with the support of Federal and State governments and key stakeholder groups. Your support for the BDCP process is critical to its success.

Sincerely,

David J. Hayes
